Business Women's Week

BPW Club Plans

Special Programs

The aims, objectives and programs of the business and professional women of Belle Glade will be highlighted in special programs Oct. 2-4, which marks the 31st annual National Business Women's Week.

The Belle Glade BPW Club will participate in the National Federation of BPW Clubs, Inc., is the largest and oldest women's organization in the world which was founded in 1919. It is the only organization for women which includes all professions and occupations. Club activities here will be on Sunday, when the members will attend the church of their choice. On October 2, an orientation program for the BPW will be presented by a panel and moderator at a meeting at the Everglades Savings and Loan Office at 8 p. m.

For prospective members and friends, The Woman of the Month, Mrs. Alice Close, will be presented by a panel and moderator at a meeting at the Everglades Savings and Loan Office at 8 p. m. Two candidates for Woman of the Month, Mrs. Alice Close and Mrs. Gene Connel for August, will be honored at the meeting. The club will vote naming the "Woman of the Year" to be chosen from the group for each month.

Wednesday, Oct. 5, at 10:45 a. m. the BPW Club will present a panel of three members, Miss Gloria Crosby, Mrs. Verda Mathewson and Mrs. Mary Lou Whitley. There will be an important discussion on farm labor problems and minimum wages for farm workers. First labor and minimum rates to be paid harvest labor for the various crops grown in this area. Over 100 members are vitally concerned with the implications and far-reaching effects of the sugar industry on its future operations. Mr. Wayne Mixson, representative of the Sugar Cane Industry, will be a guest speaker.

International And Political Monkey Business With Sugar

(EDITORS NOTE: Vice President Boy of U. S. Sugar made a talk to Rotarians recently about the sugar industry and the knowledge of the present situation from experts. We believe it is in the interest of this community particularly to print the entire talk. This is the first of three installments.)

Events of the past few months have pushed sugar to the position of prominence. The average American is beginning to realize that the sugar on his table is playing a major role in our efforts to combat the recent surge of Communism into the Western Hemisphere.

In order to give you a reasonably clear picture of the very confusing sugar situation as it exists today, I must first briefly review the Sugar Act, which is the instrument with which our Government not only controls the Domestic sugar industry, but also controls, to a large extent, the welfare of many of the Latin American countries.

The Sugar Act of 1916, as amended, is the basic law on which the DCT (Diversified Cooperative Training) Program at Belle Glade High School is based. It is the instrument with which our Government not only controls the Domestic sugar industry, but also controls, to a large extent, the welfare of many of the Latin American countries.

Civilians Informed

Of DCT Activities

Civitan Wayne K. Fortenberry spoke to the Belle Glade Civitan Club at Ray's Smokehouse on September 22 about the DCT (Diversified Cooperative Training) Program at Belle Glade High School. Mr. Fortenberry told of the history and present status of this program in Palm Beach County and Florida. He also discussed the philosophy, the objectives and the procedures for satisfying the objectives of the program.

The first program in Florida, was begun in 1958. Last year, over 20,000 students were trained in DCT in Florida. This year, there are 6 programs in Palm Beach County and 13 in Florida.

Marine Band Leader Offers Advice To Young Musicians

By Lt. Col.
Albert Schopper
Director

When the new man must recognize their ability, adjust himself to the needs of the organization, and then to achieve the same degree of proficiency so that eventually he can move on to that field as a most enjoyable occupation."

Even the young men who do qualify for positions in the Marine Band must have had previous musical education and proficiency on their various instruments, first that they make other adjustments if they wish to hold a place in this concert band.

As the Colonel explains: "A man must come from one of the fine conservatories where he played a prominent chair, say first trombone, and then he comes into the Marine Band he will find that there are men who have reached a higher level perhaps of much greater proficiency — holding the first chair position. The new man must recognize their ability, adjust himself to the needs of the organization, and then to achieve the same degree of proficiency so that eventually he can move on to that field as a most enjoyable occupation."

The approach to musical education has changed markedly in the past few years," said Colonel Schopper. "More children study music in the primary and secondary schools and musical appreciation has become a vital part of our general culture. Those who go on with their pursuit of a musical career look upon that field as a most enjoyable occupation."

When versatility has taken the place of specialization, the applicant has automatically eliminated himself from the Marine Band and similar musical organizations."

The Marine Bandmaster has occasion to audition about 250 men per week for his Band and the lack of specialization is the major cause for their rejection.

But in the process of studying too many instruments, he will dull his proficiency on all of them. When versatility has taken the place of specialization, the applicant has automatically eliminated himself from the Marine Band and similar musical organizations."

POLIO SHOTS

An American Medical Association news release deals with the "anatomy of apathy."
 It's about polio. It recalls the days of terrible epidemics, when victims were struck down on a mass scale. Then, in 1955, came the Salk vaccine which, when given in properly spaced shots, was 80 per cent effective against paralytic polio. In 1957, cases dropped to a low of 2,499.
 Then, as the release puts it, "We all went to sleep." The number of paralytic polio cases has steadily increased. In some communities epidemics have appeared once again.
 Does this mean that the vaccine has failed? Dr. Alexander Langmuir, chief of Epidemiology in the Government's Communicable Disease Center, has the answer to that question. He says: "It's not a failure of the vaccine. It's a failure of the people to use it. Eighty per cent of the paralytic cases are in the unvaccinated or incompletely vaccinated group."
 The vaccine is still 90 per cent effective it is reported. But that doesn't help the 35 million people who have failed to take advantage of it.

ARE THE SCHOOLS IN A BAD FIX?

Both the parties have adopted planks endorsing federal aid to education. They differ in detail, but so far as principle is concerned they pretty much resemble the old comis strip characters "Mike and Ike—They look alike."
 The question that arises from this is simple: "Are our schools in so bad a fix that the only solution is federal aid, federal money, and growing federal control?"
 Some facts produced by the Citizens Public Expenditures Survey may help you reach an answer.

Is there a classroom shortage? Hardly—since the end of World War II we have built, without federal handouts, 650,000 classrooms—more than half of all in use.

Is there a teacher shortage? If so, it's hard to pin down. There are 47.6 per cent more teachers now than in the 1949-50 period. The number of pupils has increased too, of course, but to a lesser degree—44.9 per cent.

Have the teachers' salaries lagged seriously behind? It doesn't look that way. In the last 11 years these salaries have increased by 9.8 per cent—almost double the cost of living has increased by only 23.6 per cent, according to the government's Consumers Price Index.

Has the public been niggardly in its spending on schools? Again, it doesn't look that way. This spending increased from $5.8 billion in 1949-50 to $15.5 billion in 1959-60—a jump of 167.9 per cent. Putting it another way, we spent $260.37 for each pupil in 1949-50; now we spend $481.48.

No doubt political consideration dictated the federal aid-to-education planks in the platforms. But they certainly aren't backed up otherwise.

Your Library

WY 6-3453

The Durian Tree . . . By Michael Keon. The gripping excitement, the romantic spirit of the Durian Tree, and its intense statement of conflicting ideologies (communist mind vs. Western mind), each committed to its own tradition and training, each determined to destroy the other) put it in a category apart from most novels of recent memory. The setting is Malaya after World War II. It is a book of enormous beauty and power.

The Tumbled House . . . Winston Graham has written a sophisticated, suspense-filled novel in "The Tumbled House." Here is a thrilling drama of a man who sets out to destroy a family, a man who unleashes a catastrophe on his closest friend. Excellent reading.

The Silents Let Him Go . . . By David Demarest Lloyd, is an intriguing novel combining the suspenseful excitement of a melodrama with a moral sense worthy of Henry James — a piece of true entertainment, thoughtfully and humorously presented. Joseph P. Fletcher was one of the nearest, cleanest, most cheerful, honest and un-suspect person to visit a wide old land, Italy, but instead he found reality in ruins and ruined lives.

The library board announces that due to the increase cost of books it will be necessary to increase the fine for overdue books to two cents, instead of the current one cent, beginning October 1.

International And Political Monkey Business (Continued From Page One)

50,000 tons. This reduced Cuba's basic quota by 200,000 tons, but was compensated for by providing that the Puerto Rican deficit would go to Cuba instead of to the Dominican area as it now does. Since this deficit has been over 200,000 tons for several years, this change actually did not materially affect any area's quota.

To understand why this compromise was finally reached, you must realize the diversity of interests that were concerned in the proposed Sugar Act extension. Of the Domestic sugar producing areas, only Domestic beet growers wanted increased quotas, and even here, there were differences of opinion. The beet growers wanted a large expansion, while the beet processors were not so eager; for the production of beet sugar expanded, they would have to go further East to find a market for their sugar. This would mean a fight with the Eastern cane sugar refiners for the market.

Additionally, beet growers in Mainland cane, the Louisiana area, while not opposing additional quotas, were not as enthusiastic as the Florida area, for Louisiana has little potential for expansion as compared to Florida.

The other Domestic areas, Hawaii, Puerto Rico, and the Virgin Islands are failing, as all of these areas are neutral to know why somebody from somewhere can't do something for their relief.

The RDB, thru its Water Resources Committee, Chairman Luther Jones and Red Mounts ramrodded a meeting Wednesday in which Lake Wales Water District Commissioners, C&SF Flood Control District and the farm and business problems and possible solutions.

Fact . . . Or Fancy?

Is it a fact? Or is it a rumor? Almost weekly we get a report at THE HERALD on some exciting story which would make exciting reading — it was a fact.

This past week — the story: A Puerto Rican was apprehended by the Florida Highway Patrol about 20 miles South of South Bay on Hwy. 27 — caught up with because he couldn't swim when canal an title trooper set up a road block and caught him. What his crime was nobody knew.

Playing Field Light Increased 3 Times

If you see the extra long and big poles being hauled or erected at the athletic field, don't wonder if the gym is to be put on stilts — they're for new and better lighting on the playing field.

The ten poles, each with six 1,000 watt lights will be replaced with 8 poles, each with 1,500 watt bulbs, and located behind the stands so that weak-eyed spectators will not have to squint under the lights, or use an eye shade.

to a first chair position again.

Colonel Schoepfer, who was promoted to the position of Leader of the Marine Band in May, 1955 upon the retirement of Lt. Col. Wm. F. Santelmann, has had a career which shows conclusively that ambition is never stifled in the Marine musical organization.

When he joined the Marine Band in 1934, he was immediately featured as Violin soloist and, because he had studied conducting, was put in charge of various string ensembles at State and official engagements. In 1951, he was appointed as Second Leader and continued to perform the music for and conduct engagements at the White House, parades, radio programs, concerts and the countless other musical affairs played by the Marine Band.

A man's experience will soon be demonstrated because we have such a variety of engagements. He must have versatility in all the areas of music, but if he has the ability and not enough experience, he will soon acquire it in the cycle of our annual assignments. He may find that he has missed many styles of playing during his years of study."

The world-famous 162-year-old Marine Band will appear here at 8:30 p. m. and evening concerts on Oct. 25 to raise funds for the Band.

Business is enabled to train prospective full time employees through its own personnel, receives the productive work of the student, and enjoys closer relations with the school and community. The home is served in that the student is taught responsibilities and earns his own spending money.

Mr. Fortenberry closed his talk by giving some of the accomplishments of the DCT program at Belle Glade High School. They worked a total of 10,396 hours and earned $9,395.45 and saved more than $2,000.00. Upon graduation, 50 percent of these students remained with their employers as full time employees.

Dirr's Completes Half Million Dollar Plant Expansion

Here on ten acres in Northwest Miami is one of America's most modern and complete meat packing plants.

The newest type equipment, processing machines, new automatic conveyors, packaging and packing units, many thousands of square feet of gleaming tile and stainless steel, big refrigerators, and many other new features make the enlarged Dirr's plant the finest in the South. Here the famous old secrets of the German sausage makers' art are wedded to today's scientific and electronic miracles which produce finer flavor, more lasting quality, and more product at less cost.

While the half million dollar expansion more than doubles capacity, area of distribution will not be enlarged, according to Ernest Hinterkopf, because the increased demand for Dirr's in its prime area from Vero Beach to Key West will still require the ex-

Celebrates Inauguration and 25th Anniversary Simultaneously This Week

Demand for Dirr's Products Necessitates Doubling Capacity

With the event of its 25th Anniversary, Dirr's inaugurates its new enlarged plant and announces new items which complete its line of fine packaged processed meats. The opening of this expanded million dollar meat packing plant means that South Florida now has an important unit of America's major food processing industry — a sign that Miami has grown up. Florida's leisurely way of life, which each year calls for millions more good hot dogs and tasty cold cuts, to a large degree is responsible for the phenomenal growth of Dirr's Gold Seal Meats. Of course, the masterful talents of the Dirr's sausage makers to produce the kind of good eating folks enjoy, has played the major role in this success story. The folks at Dirr's, proud as punch of their gleaming new plant with its enlarged facilities and equipment to prepare, cook, season, smoke and package more Dirr's tasty treats, are sure they can now keep up with the ever increasing demand for Dirr's products.

Dealers Inspected New Plant Sunday

Dirr's held Open House last Sunday for their hundreds of dealers inviting them to sample new products, view the new processes, to learn new and better ways to serve you with Dirr's new complete line of packaged meats.

Enlarged Fleet of Refrigerated Trucks Serve Dealers from Vero Beach to Key West

When George Dirr started 25 years ago today he had one wagon. In 1960 Dirr's utilizes four trucks, but today 10 big refrigerated units are required to deliver the Dirr's orders daily. It is their job to rush Dirr's made fresh daily from the Dirr's kitchens to your dealers' refrigerators.

GOLD SEAL

from Florida's NEW Million Dollar Meat Packing Plant

Ernest Hinterkopf-BUILDER of Dirr's

As president and general manager of Dirr's Gold Seal Meats, Inc., Ernest Hinterkopf says that he takes genuine pride in seeing Dirr's launched into a new era with its enlarged operation to keep stride with Miami and southern Florida's phenomenal growth. In 1937 Mr. Hinterkopf purchased the business outright from its founder, George Dirr, who had begun just two years before.

Hinterkopf had previously been in the meat packing business in Cincinnati, Ohio. He saw a tremendous opportunity in building a processed meat business in South Florida, and has enjoyed seeing the results of his efforts over the years make the Dirr's label the largest selling on the lower east coast. Hinterkopf states that freshness is a very important factor. This is why Dirr's is preferred, over shipped-in brands, by folks who appreciate quality and recognize the finer flavor of wieners, luncheon meats, sausage, ham and bacon produced fresh daily right here in Miami and frequent

Alvin Nance-V.P. in Charge of Sales

Mr. Nance joined Dirr's in 1953. He claims his deepest concern is that his sales drivers and merchandisers on his staff follow proper procedure to the letter to insure Dirr's reaching your table at the peak of flavor excellence.

Flavor-Sealed to Preserve their Goodness

Dirr's wieners taste so good because they get special treatment all through their making. The seasoning, the cooking, even the smoking is expertly done. In fact, genuine hickory wood is shipped down from the North and used to give Dirr's that tantalizing aroma and flavor that makes these wieners such superb eating.

Mr. Hinterkopf passes this hint along on how to properly heat and serve good wieners. Bring a pan of water to boil — drop in wieners — bring to boil again — turn off heat — let stand 8 to 10 minutes, then serve. To take hot wieners to picnic or on boat, put in thermos jug with boiling water — pour out water — put in wieners and eat right away. They'll be piping hot at the picnic.
